ENLARGE - It improves overall stability of the browser and user experience

Today Maxthon rolled out a new update for the release candidate version of their web browser. The fresh build number is now 4.0.3.5000 and the revision brings to the table improvements regarding the user experience, as well as repairs.

The change log is quite short and does not include the specific steps the developer took to enhance user experience; but it reveals the fixes and one of them addresses the problem with the download manager not being able to recognize Thunder Downloader.

Also repaired is an issue with the tab bar, which would be displayed incorrectly with a large number of tabs and the window would be maximized. Furthermore, the developer improved the stability of the browser by eliminating a number of crash bugs.

Maxthon Browser is available for download from this link; it is also available in portable form.
